

Ensign Equipment looks forward to growth under new ownership

Ensign Equipment Inc., based in Holland, MI has been acquired by Excalibur Group. The group owns two other west Michigan manufacturers.

Ensign Equipment designs and manufactures a complete line of bulk material handling systems and processing equipment. It's engineered solutions are built for filling, unloading, weighing, conveying and storing of several types of materials. With equipment designs for a diverse range of environments it services the plastics, recycling, chemical, food, and pharmaceutical industries.

Now part of a conglomerate of manufacturers, Ensign's platform increases to four facilities with over 120,000sqft of production space, and full metal fabrication and finishing capabilities for Aluminum, Carbon, and Stainless Steel.

"Ensign is a tremendous addition and a natural fit to our growing group of companies," said managing partner, Mark Hoofman. "The Ensign team is highly motivated and committed to bringing innovative and quality solutions to the marketplace, which fell right in line with our other teams."

Ensign has seen steady growth since 2011 and has recently invested in its future with additions in both the sales and engineering departments. "We're not afraid to invest in our teams," Mark said. "I'm really excited for the growth we'll experience in future."
